Dear Sir/Madam

I was excited to see your listing for the "Internal IT Support (m/f/x)" at Native Instruments. As a former technical project manager i would like to take this opportunity as my first step of career in Germany.

I am student of Masters in Systems Engineering at Otto Von Guericke University Magdeburg Germany and working on my thesis.

I did my graduation from Bahria University Islamabad Pakistan. My passion in engineering led me to choose one of most difficult topic for research in final year project and is secured first position in open house 2014. I did research on Terahertz channel Modelling using Grapheme Nano Antennae in coordination with N3CAT Labs Georgia and research was sponsored by Samsung. I graduated with first class honours and my thesis was placed first in Electrical Engineering.

After completing my graduation, I worked with "Globe Group of Companies" as technical sales executive. Later I worked in "HRB Group Erbil North Iraq" which was a healthcare distributor. I worked as "Project Manager" for almost three years which led me to take this decision to persue my long-term career in technical project management. My functional area was mainly focussed on designing user friendly ERP (Enterprise Resource Planning) solution which includes instructional design, module testing, post production support, customer relation management. I have maintained and support software and hardware systems in company along with helpdesk ticketing system to ensure smooth process.

Currently i am looking for job opportunity in Germany. It will be a great milestone to secure a place at Danone GmbH where i will be able to practice my knowledge and also polish my skills. Feel free to contact me per email/phone in case of any question.

Looking forward to your positive feedback.

Kind Regards,
Afshan Bi
